COVID-19 changed the operation of enterprises. In view of the latest development of the pandemic, some enterprises let their employees "work from home" again. How can we adapt to this kind of "new business norm"? In this webinar co-organised by SUCCESS and Hong Kong International Coaching Community, an expert will explain how firms and employees can respond to this new business norm. The speaker will share the tips on how to work efficiently from home, which include creating your home office, crafting your schedule, considerations for working parents, and how to communicate effectively with your teams when working from home, with a view to helping you adapt to the new norm.
